My mom always tries to tempt her into sewing as it seems to be something that she loves doing more than anything else in the world. With so much fabric, what do you do? Try to make some skirts? No, she'd rather get some quilt kits, which are wonderful for beginner quilters as well as more advanced quilters. I like to encourage my sister, but she is pretty good at figuring out what she likes and what she doesn't like. For example, she loves quilt kits and loves quilting. She's got a LOT of fabric and would like to make the quilts into things for her to use and show off to her friends. So my mom and I thought it would be fun to give her some tips and ideas. 1) Cut the fabric: To make sure that it's the right size, determine the size of the quilt. If you don't know how big the quilt is going to be, you can find that out easily enough by cutting the fabric as a square. Not as big as the end product. 2) Once you're done cutting the fabric, roll the fabric into balls and then roll the balls in between your hands to wrinkle the fabric. 3) Go outside and play with your fabric. Use the fabric for something, add a photo of yourself, or pick something up to spice up the house. 4) Make one of the quilt kits. This would be a good introduction to quilting if you've never made a quilt before. 5) Sew a little bit of the fabric together and try a felt box. 6) Keep making things. (I know this goes without saying, but it's just so much fun to sew and it's almost addictive!) My mom wants to make a quilt, but doesn't have much experience with it. What do you recommend that she should make? A baby quilt? Quilt kits? A lap quilt? You can put fabric on a frame and hang it like this, but I always prefer to make something with the frame
